Try This! Identifying Soil Texture

1. Spread soil on newspaper. Remove all rocks, trash, roots, etc. Crush all lumps.
2. Fill a tall, slender jar $\frac{1}{4}$ full of soil.
3. Add water until the jar is $\frac{3}{4}$ full.
4. Add a teaspoon of non-foaming dishwasher detergent.
5. Put on a tight fitting lid and shake hard for 10-15 minutes. This shaking breaks apart the soil aggregates and separates the soil into individual mineral particles.
6. Set the jar where it will not be disturbed for 3-3 days.
7. Soil particles will settle out according to size.
8. After 1 minute, mark on the jar the depth of the sand.
9. After 3 hours, mark the depth of silt.
10. When the water clears (3-3 days or more), mark the clay levels.
11. Measure the thickness of sand, silt, and clay layers and calculate the percentages of each.
12. Refer to the soil texture triangle and identify your soil.

BACKGROUND AND RATIONALE:

The International Year of Basic Sciences for Sustainable Development-2022, focuses on these links between basic sciences and the Sustainable Development Goals. This is a unique opportunity to convince all stakeholders that through a basic understanding of nature, actions taken will be more effective, for the common good.

Agenda 2030 for Sustainable Development is the ambitious program that the Member States of the United Nations have agreed on to ensure a balanced, sustainable and inclusive development of the planet. Basic sciences have an important contribution to make to the implementation of this program. They provide the essential means to meet crucial challenges such as universal access to food, energy, health coverage and communication technologies. They enable us to understand the impact of the currently nearly 8 billion people on the planet and to act to limit, and sometimes even to reduce it: depletion of the ozone layer, climate change, depletion of natural resources, extinction of living species. Applications of technology are easy to recognize. On the other hand, contributions of basic, curiosity-based, sciences are not well appreciated. They are nonetheless at the basis of major technological advances that stimulate innovation, as well as essential for training future professionals and for developing capacity of populations who can take part in decisions that affect their future.

National Science Day is celebrated every year on February 28 to commemorate the discovery of the 'Raman Effect. Many institutions organize open houses for their laboratories and appraise students about career opportunities available in a particular research laboratory/institution.

"Integration of Science is based on four pillars and these are- Coming together of all science ministries and departments to work on the theme-based approach of problem-solving, extended science integration aligned with technical, engineering and medical institutes, extra science integration that is aligned with Line ministries/departments of Central government and extended science-driven approach involving industries and start-ups leading to a sustainable future.

With this perspective, the Dr. Ambedkar College, Deekshabhoomi in association with S. K. Porwal College of Arts, Science & Commerce Kamptee Nagpur, Priyadarshini J.L. College of Engineering Nagpur P.G.T.D of Molecular Biology & Genetic Engineering RTMN University Nagpur organized Trans-disciplinary International Conference on the topic "Integrated Approach in S&T for Sustainable Future (ICIASTSF)" between 26th to 27th of Feb 2022 to celebrate the "National Science Day-2022 and International Year of Basic Sciences for Sustainable Development".

PARTICIPATION: The theme of this year’s conference proved popular, attracting 636 delegates-participants worldwide (The list of participants is available) representing government departments, academics, NGO’s, regional development agencies, local planning authorities, private consultants, cross-border networks, farming communities and local officials. The Faculties, Scientists, Research Scholars and Students from different disciplines were participated and shared knowledge in S&T for Sustainable Future.
